

It Is Too Late To Save Darwinism Now!

The screenshot shows a web page from Le Point.fr. At the top, the logo 'Le Point.fr' is visible, along with a smaller version of the magazine cover titled 'La vie quotidienne à l'Elysee'. Below the logo, there is a navigation bar with 'ACTUALITÉS : DIAPORAMAS' and 'Votre Point de la semaine'. The main content area displays a slide titled 'Sauvez Darwin !' with the text 'Image 13 sur 14'. The central image is the cover of the book 'Atlas de la Création' by Harun Yahya, which features a grid of six illustrations: a horse, a skull, a fossil, a fossil, a fossil, and a fossil. Below the grid, the author's name 'HARUN YAHYA' is written. At the bottom of the slide, there is a small text box with the following content:

Sauvez Darwin !
Pour que les professeurs de sciences et vie de la terre ne se sentent pas démunis devant les arguments pseudo-scientifiques des créationnistes, l'Éducation nationale organise des stages de formation pour les volontaires.
Ils y apprendront par exemple à réfuter les thèses de l'«Atlas de la création», un ouvrage qui a récemment fait irruption dans les centres de documentation d'un certain nombre d'établissements secondaires.

The 25 October, 2007, edition of Le Point, a well-known French weekly news magazine, carried an article titled "Save Darwin!" The article in question described how science and life sciences teachers were setting up an educational campaign aimed at those teachers who "feel themselves inadequately prepared" in the face of pro-creationist activities. The target of this campaign, and the subject stressed in the report is "Atlas of Creation that recently irrupted into a large number of schools."

This report, one of hundreds that have appeared in France regarding Harun Yahya's Atlas of Creation, reveals the shock effect it has had on the French public. It also reveals how helpless even those who teach the theory of evolution are in the face of the evidence in the Atlas. It is no longer possible to save Darwin, and by extension the theory of evolution bequeathed by him. The true facts have been revealed, and the false masks worn by those who lied in the name of science have been torn away. And Charles Darwin has gone down in history as the founder of the greatest scientific fraud in the history of the world.
