

Rowan Williams: "Islam is reviving British Values"

Rowan Williams, the former Archbishop of Canterbury, in his speech at the annual Living Islam Festival held in Lincolnshire mentioned the positive impact of Muslims on the British culture and stated that Islam revives the British values. In response to the question of whether, he thought, Islam was restoring British values, he said, "Yes, I am thinking of the way in which, for example, in Birmingham we have seen a local parish and a mosque combining together to provide family services and youth activities, both acting out of a very strong sense that this is what communities ought to do."

The now Master of Magdalene College in Cambridge praised both Christianity and Islam for working towards community cohesion and promoting a sense of duty.

THE INDEPENDENT

NEWS VIDEO PEOPLE VOICES SPORT TECH LIFE PROPERTY ARTS + ENTS TRAVEL MORE

UK / World / Business / People / Science / Environment / Media / Technology / Education / Images / Obitu

News > UK > Home News

'Islam is reviving British values', says former Archbishop of Canterbury Rowan Williams

He said the religion promotes a sense of duty and community belonging

LIZZIE DEARDEN | Saturday 02 August 2014

SHARE TWEET + SHARE REDDIT IN SHARE

Shares: 11K PRINT | A A A

Islam is rejuvenating "British values", the former Archbishop of Canterbury has claimed while lambasting sections of the press for presenting Muslims as "un-British".

Rowan Williams was giving a speech at the annual Living Islam Festival in Lincolnshire on Friday, discussing what British values were and how Muslims could affect them.

<https://www.harunyahya.info/en/articles/rowan-williams-islam-is-reviving-british-values>