

Dünyaya Yemen Çağrısı

14°C
ISTANBUL, TURKEY CLOUDY

 the pioneer
FRIDAY, 29 DECEMBER 2017 | 03:28:41 AM

Search

E-PAPER

HOME CITY NATION BUSINESS WORLD VIVACITY AVENUES SPORTS COLUMNISTS STATE EDITIONS SUNDAY EDITION VIDEOS

Home » Columnists » Oped

COLUMNISTS

A COMEBACK STORY
Thursday, 28 December 2017 | Harun Yahya | in Oped

Besides war and cholera, hunger is perhaps the worst humanitarian crisis facing Yemen today. The UN is doing its bit. India just moved a grant. But more is needed

Everyone has dreams. Some people dream of achieving an important position in their career, some dream of a house, some a sports car... But have you ever met someone who dreams of milk? Or a bowl of hot food? In many parts of the world, sometimes, a mother's biggest dream is to be able to take her child to the hospital. Even though it sounds unusual, these are the dreams of the Yemeni people. Does this make you wonder why?

According to the Food and Agriculture Organisation of the United Nations, one of the most severe hunger crises in the world is currently happening in Yemen.

According to the United Nations' March 2017 analysis, hunger rates have increased by 20 per cent, compared to the last nine months. Currently, it is estimated that about 17 million people suffer from hunger in Yemen. Two-third of the population does not have any food to eat and people are desperate for help.

The ongoing conflicts in the country have caused a serious decline in livestock and agricultural production. Out of the 2.2 million children, 460,000 are now suffering from severe malnutrition.

"A child in Yemen is 10 times more at risk of death if not treated on time than a healthy child of his/her age," said Meritxell Relaño, UN Children's Fund Representative in Yemen.

Jamie McGoldrick, the UN humanitarian aid coordinator in Yemen, describes the situation in Yemen as "catastrophic and rapidly worsening." The following words of Fatima, who takes care of two grandchildren, both suffering from thalassaemia, one four and the other 11-year-old, reveals the terrible scale of this disaster:

"We have no money to treat my grandsons or to feed ourselves. These days, we sell brooms and buy ourselves some flour and then eat it with water. Either we die from the bombing or from the hunger. My grandson needs treatment and on the top of all that he needs to eat healthy food. My grandson doesn't know what the milk tastes like. The whole world watches us dying and stays silent against [the] coalition."

Norwegian Refugee Council Secretary General Jan Egeland, widely regarded as one of the most experienced diplomats in Europe, describes the situation he witnessed in Yemen as "shocking to the bones" and added:

"Men with guns and power inside Yemen as well as in regional and international capitals are undermining every effort to avert an entirely preventable famine, as well as the collapse of health and education services for millions of children."

MORE NEWS

- » The new speedsters
29 Dec 2017 | Kushan Mitra | in Automobile
- » Think now | Ernest Hemingway
29 Dec 2017 | Pioneer | in Thoughts
- » Gujarat verdict: Beyond the number game
29 Dec 2017 | Jaiveer Shergill | in Oped
- » Make an informed maternity choice
29 Dec 2017 | Swapna Majumdar | in Oped
- » Where terror is mainstream
29 Dec 2017 | Anil Gupta | in Oped
- » A year of conflict
29 Dec 2017 | Pioneer | in Edit
- » It's economy, stupid
29 Dec 2017 | Pioneer | in Edit
- » Dhoni and the place of meritocracy in India
29 Dec 2017 | RK Pachauri | in Edit
- » Think now | Friedrich Nietzsche
28 Dec 2017 | Pioneer | in Thoughts
- » Poisonous menace in our backyard
28 Dec 2017 | Kota Srinaj | in Oped

Kaynak yetersizliği ya da gıda sevkiyatlarının geç varması sebebiyle, uluslararası kuruluşların tüm gıda yardım girişimlerine rağmen hayatını kaybedenlerin sayısı halen turmanışta. Gönderilen yardımların birçoğu sahiplerine ulaşmıyor. BM yetkililerinin en büyük endişesi ise; şu an yardım sevkiyatının yapıldığı hatların da yakın bir gelecekte kapatılabilecek olması. Eğer bu olursa; ülkeye yapılan gıda yardımı durma noktasına gelecek ve milyonlarca insan göz göre göre ölüme terk edilecek.

Hindistan'ın en eski ve en köklü İngilizce günlük ulusal gazetesi The Pioneer'da Adnan Oktar'ın makalesi yer aldı.

<https://www.harunyahya.info/tr/Makaleler/267135>

<http://harunyahya.com/en/Articles/267136>

<http://www.dailypioneer.com/columnists/oped/a-comeback-story.html>

<https://www.harunyahya.info/makaleler/dunyaya-yemen-cagrısı-47759>